NEWS OF THE BALL FIELD, RACE TRACK AND PRIZE RING.

An Early Morning Mill-The Black Pearl the Victor in Eight Rounds. A Big and Determined Crowd-General Sporting Notes.

Fully 500 people witnessed the muchtalked-of fight between the Black Pearl and Isaac Murgen, the two colored middle-weights, this morning. which resulted in a victory for the Pearl in the eighth round, after 35 minutes' fighting. It was one of the most exciting mills that has taken place in this vicinity for some time, not so much by reason of the ability the men displayed, as it was the apparent desire of every man in the crowd to take a hand in it.

No such crowd ever witnessed a fight before, and it was a lucky thing that nobody was seriously injured in the jam and rush.

There was no concealment of the place of fighting, and this accounted for the large number present. The one interesting query last night was, "Are you going over the bridge?" and about every one who was asked promptly declared he was. "Over the bridge" meant an old frame barn just beyond the south end of the Long Bridge that has gathered many a similar crowd within its small quarters, and has been the scene of many a fight, both between human beings and animals.

The start was made from the city about I o'clock, and for an hour there was a constant stream of carriages passing over the bridge at a lively rate, with little regard for the conspicuously posted signs not to allow the horses to move faster than a walk. Those who were not fortunate enough to have the cash to pay for a carriage walked and consoled themselves with the thought that they stood as much show of seeing the fight as did their more aristocratic brethren. The old shed was illuminated with a couple of kerosene lamps placed over the ring, and here about seventy-five men who had put up $3 apiece to see the fight sought and found admission and immediately skirmished for a good position. The old-timers—those who take in every event of this kind and who have begun to believe that one would not be a success without their presence-remained on the outside and

A black-bearded Cerberus stood guard over the door, and he probably does not desire to occupy such a position again. The crowd on the side wanted to join that on the inside, and it either wouldn't or couldn't put up the dust. Hence the fun. Whenever persons would seek to gain admittance, they would push against the door dance, they would push against the door and its guardian in a vain effort to carry half a dozen men through the parrow doorway. Failing in this, they tore the door off the hinges and tried to use it as a battering-ram against the individual who tried to keep them out. But this was not all the excitement. There were several games of "sweat" going on and any number of impromptu encounters, incidental to the event of the evening.

Meanwhile the crowd on the outside was 'growing' impatient, and its impa-tience increased with its numbers, until finally it resolved to get in at all hazards. Somebody suggested tearing down the barn, and that crowd adopted the motion unanimously and proceeded to act on it. "Rip" went a board off the side, and in less than five minutes the wind had the best opportunity it has had since the shed was built, for there were half a dozen boards taken off. Where the crowd would have stopped, Where the crowd would have stopped, or whether they would have stopped at all until there was nothing left but the beams and roof, is a question that can never be answered positively, for the manager of the affair threw the doors wide open and the delighted gang trooped in. It was an awful jam, and it succeeded in making it real pleasant, for those who were near the ropes engaged in a catch-as-catch can match to retain their equilibrium.

The ring was a very small one, about 6 x 10 feet, and it was taken possession of by about a dozen men, who wanted a of by about a dozen men, who wanted a good yiew of the fight. Finally the referce succeeded in getting them out and about 2 o'clock the fight began.

The Pearl was seconded by C. C. Smith, and Murgen had his interests looked after by Joe Fielden and Tom O'Rourke. Billy Northedge was selected as referce, Before the fight there was considerable betting done at 10 to 7 against Murgen and it seemed the online that he was not in it, although opinion that he was not in it, although as the fight went on, the sympathies of the crowd seemed to be with him, for the excellent showing he made.

Neither man possessed much science although Murgen had a tritle the best of it in this regard, but he showed his inexperience as a ring fighter by his constant rushes and clinches, which only served to wind him, and did him more harm than good. The Pearl also had the advantage in weight, and his had the advantage in weight, and his stockily built form was in marked contrast to his slender opponent. Both were in the pink of condition, and when they stepped to the centre of the ring to shake hands it looked as if a game fight would result. At the call of "time" both men jumped to the scratch and italied form meaning. iddled for an opening. Murgen found it and let go his left against the Peari's jaw, and in return took a hot one in the ribs. The men clinched, and before they could be separated had managed to land a number of body blows on each other. As they broke Murgen upper cut the Pearl. It surprised him, and he went at his antagonist savagely, but Murgen clinched and saved himself. The round ended in a clinch in Murgen's corner.

It began to look as if Murgen's abili-ties had been underestimated when the second round began for he forced the fighting, and with his left caught the Pearl under the eye and drew first blood. This was the only effective blow of the round, which was simply a series

The Pearl's weight began to tell in the third round. He was playing a waiting game and letting his opponent do the leading, contenting himself with heavy body blows and an occasional face blow. He played for Murgen's jaw, and just before the round closed drove a straight one from the shoulder right against the little fellow's mouth that almost knocked him out.

It looked as if all was over, but Murgen came to time promptly for the fourth round and actually forced the tighting. He rushed the Pearl back and forth across the ring and landed on his face and neck repeatedly.

Clinching was about all that was done in the lifth round, although Murgen claimed a knock-down, which was

When the sixth round began the Pearl thought it was time to get in it. As Murgen led the Pearl sent his right against his heart and cracked him in the jaw. It was the beginning of the end, for Murgen was losing rapidly. He tried to recover by a resumption of his hugging tactics, but it did not avail him anything, and when the seventh round began the Pearl went in to finish

A couple of heart blows did the business and Murgen went to grass. He laid there for the full time and staggered to his feet and clinched, only to go down again, when the men were separated. Murgen was on his back when the round closed, and it did not seem possible he could come to time. He did, however, and pluckily faced his victorious opponent. He was dazed and made but a feeble attempt to put up his hands, and with a couple of blows the Pearl easily settled him. It gen's men threw up the sponge. The fight was for $100 a side and the gate money.

Other Sporting Events, The Washingtons redeemed themselves yesterday for the defeat of Saturday by winning a very creditable game by timely batting. It was a plucky up-hill fight throughout, and the boys de-serve considerable praise for the manner in which they played. Phillips pitched an excellent game, and while he did not receive the support he should have he was fairly backed up, and on two occasions when men were on the bases

If the team can keep up such batting as it did yesterday, the fielding errors will be more than atoned for.

Washington had a larger attendance on the opening day than any other city in the Association.

The following notice to umpires, says a dispatch from Louisville, Ky., has been issued by the president of the American Association: "The attention of the umpires of the American Association is called to the provisions con-tained in the rules of the Association which prohibits captains and players of the various clubs from disputing or questioning the decisions of the umpire. And the umpires are directed not to allow players or captains from either of the contesting clubs to come in from their positions to argue with him or to dispute concerning any decision made by him. The umpires will hereafter notify the captains of both clubs before play begins that this rule will be strictly enforced, and whenever any player or captain starts in from hi position to dispute or question any decision of the umpire he will be warned by the umpire not to come in, and if he insists upon violating this rule the umpire will enforce the penalties provided in such cases. I beg leave to assure the umpires that I will see that they are sustained in their actions taken in pursuance to the directions herein

"THAT WAS ELOQUENCE."

How Reverdy Johnson Made Lord Brougham Listen With Interest, From the Boston Globe.

Reverdy Johnson was one of the few men that made Lord Brougham listen with any degree of genuine interest. His lodship's companions have complained that whenever he was not talking he was thinking of something to talk about.

It was at a dinner given by the great Marylander in London that he caught the clusive attention of the self-absorbed Earl. They had got down to canvas-back ducks, brought from the far-away home of the host, and the joy of the guests was exquisite.

Brougham vowed that not another dish in the world should ever be thought of in the same moment with canvas-back ducks from Chesapeake Bay. He ventured to say to Johnson that he doubted not that they were now enjoying the fairest products of the States.
"Oh, no!" answered the proud American. "We have something far superior to that which I have spread before you His lordship was astonished, and in-quired: "What might that be?"

"Chesapeake terrapin," answered He saw then that he had stirred the curiosity of his company, and so he pro-ceeded to gratify it under the rare in-spiration of Lord Brougham's attentive-ness. In graphic speech he went down into the mud for the hibernating quad-ruped, washed its shell, and then boiled it.

He pictured with blood curdling vividness the way the terrapin would respond to the constantly increasing temperature of the water by stretching forth its long, ugly head, and searching seemingly, for some means of escape. Next the listening guests saw the shell float off, and the scalding process begin in deadly express.

Then the cook in the fively picture defily removed the claws and the gall, which disposed of half the bulk in the pot. The precious remainder next entered upon the stewing process in another vessel. At last the terrapin, reduced to sweet strings and julcy particles, was turned into a great chafing-dish and carried to the dining-room, where the waiting company saw it placed before the hostess, in an old-time ace cap and wonderfully embroidered

The little lamp beneath the dish was then lighted. In a few moments the guardian angel began the seasoning, with a sprinkle of this, a dash of that, and a generous pour of some venerable

About this time the English lip smacked, and Lord Brougham, who had listened eagerly, exclaimed: That is

A DIVIDED CONGREGATION,

Row in a Media Church Because the Paster is Single, MEDIA, PA., April 22.-There is trouble in the Methodist Episcopal Church at this place, which has already depleted the congregation, and the climax of which has not yet been reached. It is all about the rector, Rev. J. D. Martin, and the only fault found with him is that he is a single man and has been in charge of that church for nearly four years without taking unto himself a wife, thouge he came here with the understanding that he would join the army of Benedicts at an early day.

The discontent in the church has been brewing for some time, but it has been kept quiet, and only recently have signs of open revolution been made apparent seems that the church is what is known as "a married man's charge," and when Rector Martin accepted the call he did so, according to the story of his enemies, conditionally upon his taking a wife within a year. The year passed and he was still single. Again was he called, and another year passed without his having entered the matrimonial yoke.

For the third time was he returned, and when at the end of that term-in March last-he was still single, some of his parishioners determined to call a halt and objection was made, but to the surprise of the objectors Rev. Mr. Martin was for the fourth time returned by the presiding elder, and the trouble began to assume serious proportions. Unpleasant things were said about the pastor and he is said to have made re-marks in return that were not exactly me who go so far as to insinuate that Martin himself inspired certain eulogistic remarks that were made about him in order to influence the presiding elder in returning him for the fourth term. A number of worshipers have resigned and sought other churches. Superintendent of the Sunday School Smedley, Secretary Rogers and Henry P. Attey tendered their resignations at a meeting of the Sunday School last week, and the vacancies have not yet been filled. From a congregation num-bering 275 a few months ago there was a steady fall, until yesterday not more than forty persons attended the evening services. Mr. Martin's friends admit that he has violated the rules of the church by remaining single, but claim that he is a much abused man, and announce their determination to stand by him to the end. What steps are to be taken has not yet been decided upon.

PAY FOR HIS SCALP, A Pretty Just Claim for the Loss of His Hair,

From the Globe-Democrat. Senator Plumb has introduced a bill o pay $5,000 to a man who was scalped. Accompanying the affidavits and other papers in the case is a realistic piece of evidence in the form of a recent photograph. This picture shows the head as knife was applied.

The claimant is Robert McGee. His home is at Easton, Leavenworth County, Kan. In 1864 McGee was only years old, but he was rather large his age, and thought he could induce the officers to accept him as a recruit He went to Fort Leavenworth and en-When the mustering came on McGee was rejected, but was given a place as teamster by a contractor who was about to take a wagon train of Gov-ernment supplies from Fort Leaven-worth to Fort Union, in New Mexico. McGee was an orphan. He had no ome to which he could return, and no friends with whom he could advise. He took the position of teamster under the impression that he was still in the Government service, although he had been rejected as a soldier. Near what is now the flourishing city of Larned the wagon train was wiped out by Little Turtle's band of Indians. McGee was the only survivor. He was scalped and left on the ground for dead. This happened on the 11th of July, 1864. The terrible ordeal left the boy shat-tered in health. For many years he made a living by exhibiting his scarred crown, and now he appeals to the Government, not for pension, but for the lump sum of $5,000. The claim comes under the classification of Indian depredations, although there is nothing just like it on the records. The papers are now in the hands of the Select Committee on Indian Depredation Claims.

Poor girl, poor girl, so young, so fair,
And doomed to die so soon;
The seeds of death are scattered there,
And long before life's noon
The grass will grow upon her grave;
So friends in sorrow say,
And think no power on earth can save
The dear one from decay.
Why do they think and talk like this?
Simply because some of her family have died from scrofulous poisoning of the blood, and they see indications of the same taint in her. Scrofula of the Lungs, commonly called Consumption, is a terrible disease, and it is not to be wondered at that they dread it. But it can be conquered. The poison can be driven out of the blood. The taint can be eliminated from the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden persons who were expected to find early graves, because "there was serofula in the money paid for it will be returned.

THE CODE DUELLO.

A Powerful Arraignment by a South-ern Newspaper, From the Nashville American Colonel Matt Gallaway of Memphis is one of the brightest and most cultivated men in the State, and among many other accomplishments is thoroughly familiar with the code duello.

In conversation with a reporter of the Memphis Scimitar he gives some points of interest on the subject. By denouncing Fleming as a llar, a cow-ard and a scoundrel, he says, Phelan placed the former outside the code limit and could not thereafter consistently fight him. It is one of the requirements of the code that all communications looking to a hostile meet-ing must be couched in the most polite and courteous language, and a gentle-man cannot consistently fight with a man whom he considers a lfar, a cow-ard and a scoundrel. The code, says Colonel Gallaway, is for the settling of disagreements among gentlemen, and the combatants must treat each other as gentlemen.

The "code" is, in other words, merely a shooting match between gen-tlemen with each other for targets. It tlemen with each other for targets. It is the most cruel of all kinds of killing, because it is murder by coldly fixed and studiously observed rules. A man cannot, under the code, fight a man whom he considers a liar or a scoundrel; he can only fight a man whom he considers a gentleman. Now it is almost inconceivable how one gentleman and man of honor can deserve man and man of honor can deserve death at the hands of another. If a man is ever excused in seeking the life of another it would seem to people of common sense that he would be in the case of a Har who had slandered him or a scoundrel who had maliciously wronged him rather than in the case of a gentleman with whom he had had a difference.

So, too, it seems to us that a killing which follows intense anger and intemperate denunciation is less shocking to the moral sense than one which follows a courteous interchange of civilities. We had rather hear abusive epithets and observe evidences of bitter hate when men fight than to see them shake hands prior to shooting each other to death. Drawing-room manners are repulsive when men are seeking each other's lives. To strike in hot blood is a human weakness, upon which even the stern face of the law is turned with a pitying regard; but to kill in cold blood, without passion; to deliver a sword-thrust with a bow and send a bullet with a pleasant greeting is a spe-cies of human depravity which can find no excuse in law or sound sentiment.

The murder of gentlemen by gentle The murder of gentlemen by gentlemen in a gentlemenly way, as provided in the code duello, is the very extreme of cold-blooded cruelty. The code studiously excludes everything which might reduce the grade of the homicide from murder in the first degree. And the year refigements the decencies the the very refinements, the decencies, the etiquette of the regulation duel make it tenfold more shocking than a bloody street or barroom brawl.
